

CYCLONE HITS FAIR GROUNDS

One Man Was Instantly Killed, and Seven Others Badly Injured.

AN AWFUL STORM

A Boy at Hinsdale, Michigan, and a Woman at Battle Creek, Struck by Lightning.

St. Louis, Mo., Aug. 6.—A wind that in the western portion of the city developed into a miniature twister, tore through the World's Fair grounds, killing one man, probably fatally injuring another, and seriously injuring seven others, besides causing damage to the World's Fair buildings and other property throughout the city to the extent of $10,000.

The dead: Theodore Richter, Kirkwood florist.

The injured: A. R. Clark, William Koch, Henry Fabrikopf, Ray Mannville, John W. Wheelhouse, Adrian Smith, Phineas L. Golig, Charles Covington.

The day had been extremely warm, the temperature registering 94 degrees. Suddenly the sky began growing dark, and within a comparatively short time it became necessary to resort to artificial lights in the stores. Soon after the storm broke with the force of a gale.

Workmen Are Caught.

At the World's Fair grounds the wind swept from the southeast to the northwest in a miniature cyclone, revolving as it went. The Agricultural building stood in its path and six laborers working on scaffolding were hurled to the ground and nine sets of trusses and timbers overturned.

Theodore Richter, a florist from Kirkwood, a suburb, was running to shelter when a flying plank struck him, killing him instantly.

The wind next struck Machinery building, and one of the two towers, 360 feet in height, was stripped of scaffolding in a twinkling, and two workmen hurled to the ground in the debris. Both escaped with severe bruises.

The World's Fair department turned out and hastily dug the injured men from the debris and hurried them to the hospital. A. R. Clark was so badly injured it is believed he will die before morning.

Wind Blows Both Ways.

On the administration building towers, situated forty feet apart, are two flags. As the twisting wind reached this building it lifted and passed between the towers. One flag blew to the east and the other to the west, and yet neither was displaced or injured.

In East St. Louis Mrs. Margaret Riechmann, aged 47, fearing a repetition of the 1896 tornado, dropped dead from fright.

Three 160-foot smokestacks at the street car powerhouse were thrown down.

SUSPENDS PAPER FAVORING PANAMA

Colombian Government Objects to the Advocacy of the Isthmian Independence.

Panama Aug. 6.—By order of the government El Istomeno, a news paper, has been suspended for six months for publishing an article advocating independence of the Isthmus of Panama from Columbia. The objectionable article is as follows:

Has Columbia corresponded to the sincere adhesion, loyalty and important services of the Isthmus of Panama? Being of the same origin, having similar tendencies, sentiments and language, can anybody answer affirmatively, is the Isthmus of Panama happy and prosperous belonging to Columbia? Would it now be happier seceding as an independent sovereign republic? Has not the above idea been germinating for years in the hearts of the patriotic Isthmians owing to justified resentments of a noble but unfortunate strip of land which annexed itself to Columbia of its own free will? Panama can and should be absolutely independent.

We are not happy or satisfied in any way under Columbian control. Dominion Isthmians without exception, are, are separatists and dream about independence of the fatherland. We do not seek annexation to foreign powers. We advocate, and proclaim a sovereign republic, governed and controlled by Isthmians alone. Costa Rica is a small nation, yet a happy and prosperous one. Why not the Isthmus, being larger, with more elements, also become independent and prosperous?

CHINA ASKS FOR THE REFORMERS

Would Make an Example of the Shanghai Rebels by Torturing Them.

Peking, Aug. 6.—The throne yesterday made formal representations to the foreign ministers in regard to the Chinese reformers who were arrested in Shanghai, and asked that they be turned over to the Chinese authorities for trial. This is repudiating the agreement made by the Shanghai, tactical guaranteeing their trial and punishment in foreign concession at Shanghai. Acting upon the requests of the consuls at Shanghai, the ministers have referred the matter to their home governments, and now unless the press is able to arouse public sentiment, it is likely the ministers, acting solely under the letter of the treaties, will be obliged to hand the accused over to the government, whose punishments are the most barbarous on earth.

The dwager empress is responsible for the death by torture of a reformer a few days ago, and she is anxious similarly to punish all other reformers and dip her hands as deeply into their blood, as she did into the blood of foreigners and pro-foreign Chinese in 1900.

During the last year the throne has made a great pretense of revising the penal and criminal codes, the latter contains no provision for the disposition of prisoners of war, and they are promptly murdered or subjected to barbarous punishments. Wu Ting Fang, formerly the Chinese minister at Washington, was appointed to revise the codes, but the empress has shown her contempt for foreign learning by appointing him to an undersecretaryship, and promoting a man who was two steps below Wu Ting Fang to a position over his head.

END PREDICTED FOR PARLIAMENT

The London Daily Mail Says an Appeal to the Voters May Come Soon.

London, Aug. 6.—The Daily Mail, whose advocated policy would thereby be suited, gives prominence to rumors of a dissolution of parliament closely impending. It says that Sir William Vernon Harcourt is credited with starting them. The dissolution is to take place in September. The paper adds that if Colonel Secretary Chamberlain fails to reconcile the duke of Devonshire to his policy within a short time Balfour will submit his resignation to the ministers and the king. His majesty will then according to the Mail, summon the duke of Devonshire to form a new cabinet with an alternative of dissolution, but there are great doubts whether the duke will accept this task. It would be necessary in the case of his refusal either to call a liberal administration or appeal to the country.

NEWS OF THE STEAM ROADS

Boat Ride at Rockford Tomorrow for Telegraphers—Gleason Returns from a Long Trip.

Reports have been current during the last few days that Gould has given up the idea of securing an independent outlet for the Wabash to the seashore. He is now said to be negotiating with the Vanderbilt people to bring about an arrangement whereby the Wabash is to run a through passenger train over the New York Central and use the West shore as an outlet for the Wabash freight traffic.

A number of new eastern routes have been suggested for the Wabash in the last eighteen months, the most important among them being the Erie and Baltimore and Ohio. But all hope of securing these roads is said to have been abandoned. The Erie is practically controlled by the Vanderbilts and they are not inclined to have it made a dangerous competitor for the New York Central. The Pennsylvania has lately strengthened its hold on the Baltimore and Ohio.

The report of a Gould-Vanderbilt alliance is believed to have good foundation.

St. Paul Road's Coal Mines
In buying a 1000 acre tract near Spring Valley Illinois, the Milwaukee and St. Paul becomes the owner of one of the most valuable bituminous coal mines in Illinois. The property which is within 100 miles of Chicago, is so rich that it will supply the road with 50 per cent of the soft coal needed for operation of the system.

To reach the coal fields it has been necessary to build a line forty miles long from Ladd, to Rochelle, Ill. This road is nearly completed and is known as the Rochelle, and Southern.

For years the Milwaukee and St. Paul has been planning to get as source of coal supply near Chicago. Most of the coal had to be shipped from West Virginia. The situation last year, when there was a scarcity of coal and later a car shortage, is said to have induced the Milwaukee and St. Paul management to complete arrangements whereby it would be assured of an unfailing source of fuel supply.

McIntosh Bros., railroad contractors, have been awarded the contract of building ten miles of road in Northern Michigan, for the North-Western road. The new spur is to run north from Beaver, Mich., to a point in the lumber region. It is expected that it will be in operation in November.

The Fond du Lac railroad people who have the arrangements in charge will serve coffee, sandwiches and lemonade free on the grounds.

The trout have all died at the fountain in the roundhouse park but all the other of the funny tribe in the pond are thriving finely. There is quite a happy family of them, nearly all of the commoner fish found in neighboring lakes and streams being represented. There are small bass, suckers, shiners, goldfish, pickeral, sunfish, carp and bullheads. Mr. Erickson, thinks that the fish thrive better as the moss is allowed to grow around the edges and on the bottom of the fountain. It makes the water darker and saves the eyes of the fish. The little sunfish are his favorites when he comes to the waters edge to feed them they will come from way across the fountain and eagerly grab at the flies that are thrown on the water.

Operators R. D. Stone, G. F. Brigham, C. E. Anderson and I. T. Matthews will attend excursion given by telegraphers at Rockford tomorrow evening. This is the first boat ride and dance given by the order of railway telegraphers and it is hoped to make it an annual affair. The entertainment will be held Friday evening, August 7th. ## OUTLOOK SEEMS MUCH BETTER

NEW YORK MARKETS ARE IMPROVING

THE CRASH IS ABOUT OVER

The Tendency Will Now Be for Prices to Rise Gradually—No Danger.

The crisis in Wall Street appears to have reached its climax, and from now on improvement may be reasonably expected, accompanied, of course, by the usual set backs incidental to convalescence. Experts seem to agree in diagnosing the ailment which has attacked the stock market with such severity as financial gastritis—the inevitable result of an ill-advised attempt to swallow an immense quantity of indigestible securities. Singularly, the attack has been most severe upon those who took part in this sumptuous meal; but fortunately, owing to vigorous constitutions and heroic applications of the hydropathic or liquidation treatment, the disease did not become sufficiently acute to develop symptoms of hysteria or panic. The unhappy patients have suffered severely by their underwriting commitments; nevertheless a valuable lesson has been learned, and the experience should have its value to observers and all interested.

Satisfactory Feature

The most satisfactory feature of the last few days has been the easier rates for time money. This demonstrates reviving confidence on the part of bankers who are obliged to anticipate the future. While the high figure at which loans continue to stand in the weekly bank statement is a matter of concern to some observers who have been anticipating a sharp contraction as the result of the recent liquidation, bankers do not show any anxiety in this respect probably because they now have their resources unusually well in hand and profitably employed. There are three factors accounting for this high level of loans, which are sometimes overlooked, viz.: the large increase of banking capital in New York the large amount of railroad paper outstanding and the increased extent to which big industrial establishments under the trust system now borrow in New York instead of near the mills as formerly. A good bank statement is anticipated this week, partly on account of payment of the Pennsylvania loans and partly because treasury disbursements have been exceeding receipts for some time past. Stock market liquidation must also have strengthened the banks much more than as yet appeared in the weekly statements. Beside these factors gold is now on its way here from Australia, and in the present condition of the European money markets any emergency here would quickly start gold imports to this centre. The local money market, therefore, is in much improved condition. Very soon crop demands will assert themselves; but the banks are well prepared for these, and the present outlook is that no special inconvenience will be caused thereby. It is quite certain that legitimate trade will not suffer for want of proper financial accommodations this summer or fall; and speculative demands are not likely to be excessive for some time.

Run its Course

Now that liquidation has about run its course, it is proper to consider future influences, such as crops, general business, railroad earnings, currency legislation and political campaigns. As to crops, the outlook is still for more than average yields of wheat, corn, cotton, oats, hay and live stock. There will be plenty of wheat at good prices to the farmer. Corn promises a 2,000,000,000,000 crop. Cotton is likely to yield a normal crop and is sure of big prices to the grower, which mean unusual prosperity in the south for the next 12 months. This in one of the most striking probabilities of today. Live stock raisers are also anticipating a profitable season. General business has not thus far been distributed by the Wall Street crash. Possibly new enterprises will receive some check in consequence; but all advices from the interior agree in reporting satisfactory conditions and fair prospects for another good season with distributors. Railroad earnings continue large, and in the great industries production has not yet outrun consumption. Some expedient remedial action on the currency question is expected from the next congress, but no important legislation on either currency or tariff need be anticipated before a presidential election. Discussion may develop, but real and important action need not be expected. The stock market is not likely to be disturbed by political agitation for some time to come.

Go Upwards

Hereafter the tendency of prices ought to be conservatively upwards for really good stocks. More reactions are to be expected because of further liquidation on the part of concerns that were recently lidded over. But sales of this character cannot be very large after such a thorough house-cleaning as we have just passed through. Stocks have been drifting into stronger hands, and no doubt some of the big railroad deals which have been pending for a year or two will be facilitated by the recent shifting of ownership and removal of antagonistic influences. How much the late depression has been aggravated by operations of this sort by some of the biggest leaders will never be disclosed, but the skill and force with which the downward movement was when panic threatened—strongly suggests that powerful interests have shrewdly taken advantage of recent conditions to further important plans, with discrimination on the declines will therefore eventually prove profitable investments.

MUSKRATS PLENTY NEAR LOWER DAM

Many Nests Can Be Seen in the Shallows Near the River Banks.

The large pond cut from the river by the grading of McKee boulevard, near the ridge, in Spring Brook is becoming the favorite haunt of many muskrats, early in the mornings they can often be seen swimming around among the weeds.

There are several colonies near the river at this place, and clusters of their houses or nests of weeds appear in many places, rising in irregular shaped mounds above the level of the water. A casual glance at one of these places of abode would lead one to believe that there was no opening by which the muskrats could gain an entrance, or else that the nest must be below the surface of the stream or down in the mud. Breaking up a house, however, shows it to be made somewhat similar to the nests of the beavers, the nest itself, is above the surface of the pond but the door is from below and so way below the surface of the water and the rat must dive and enter from the river bottom to reach the nest. Some of the muskrats in the pond near the McKee boulevard are big fellows, and can dive or swim along or under the surface of the water with great rapidity. They are wild and it is difficult to get near them, but sometimes when surprised the rat will remain motionless and it is difficult to distinguish the animals from the weeds and reeds that line the banks and grow in the shallows of small ponds. The nests are made mostly from the long reeds and small sticks, mud and grass. From their shape, and the way the nests are built, they make strong and safe retreats for their owners in times of danger.

Toten Talks.

A penchant for fried chicken the interposition of providence, and an irresistible impulse conspired last Sunday night to encompass the disgrace of a First Ward young lady, in high church standing.

In company with a young man whose standing in fraternal orders, even surpasses her prominence in religious circles, she was seated upon the front porch of her home. The conversation turned to subjects dear to the palate, and the young man expressed an overpowering hunger for some fried chicken. His companion volunteered to furnish the culinary skill if he would provide the fowl.

Just then, as if by an act of providence, a chicken, young and tender, scurried across the lawn, directly under the eyes of the hungry couple. Quicker than the thought, the lodge member darted in pursuit, carressed the neck of the toothsome feathered creature, and an instant later the bird was flopping its last on a chopping block in the yard to the rear of the house. Then to the kitchen with birdie, and the couple principally interested, affirm that its tender limbs and breast were the best ever.

But the young lady is not on speaking terms with her nearest relatives since the fact leaked out that she, a church and Christian Endeavor member, was party to the theft of a chicken, and that on the Sabbath evening.

The Duke of Marlborough, who has just been appointed undersecretary of state for the British colonies, according to the opinion expressed in English papers, is indebted in no small degree to the tact of his American wife for his political preferment.

Cup Races Will Be Thrilling

Reliance and Shamrock III. Are Fastest Boats Ever Built to Sail For Trophy the America Won In 1851 * Yachting Gossip.

Interest is now at fever heat concerning the coming races off Sandy Hook for the America's cup. Reliance is easily the fastest defender ever built. Shamrock has shown herself to be superior to any other challenger that on the water line than the old America. The Reliance is fifty-two feet longer over all and carries approximately three times as much sail.

Enormous spars are required to carry the 15,500 square feet of canvas which Reliance spreads. From the boom to the top-sail balyard block the mast measures 153 feet, and when carrying the largest club topsail the height from the deck to the tip of the club topsail sprit will be more than 175 feet, or considerably more than double the height of the America's mainmast.

Reliance's boom is 114 feet long, or just about double America's main boom. The spars are the longest and the spread of canvas the greatest that ever have been put upon a yacht.

Yachting, and especially the international brand, is the most expensive sport in the world. It costs more to win a mug offered for a yacht race than to carry off a prize offered for competition in any other sport. Yachtsmen will spend thousands of dollars and take endless trouble to win a fifty dollar cup. No heavy stakes are raced for in yachting, and in this country the most successful yacht of the year will fall a long way short of winning enough to pay her expenses.

Should Sir Thomas Lipton be successful this year and carry away the ever came over in quest of the famous trophy which has been held in this country continuously since 1851. Therefore why should we not feel confident that the contests, which begin Aug. 20, will be the closest and consequently the fastest ever sailed for the "blue ribbon of the seas?"

So tune up your voice and prepare your lungs to shout for a hard fought and well won victory for Uncle Samuel and his beautiful Reliance, the vanquisher of redoubtable Columbia and Constitution.

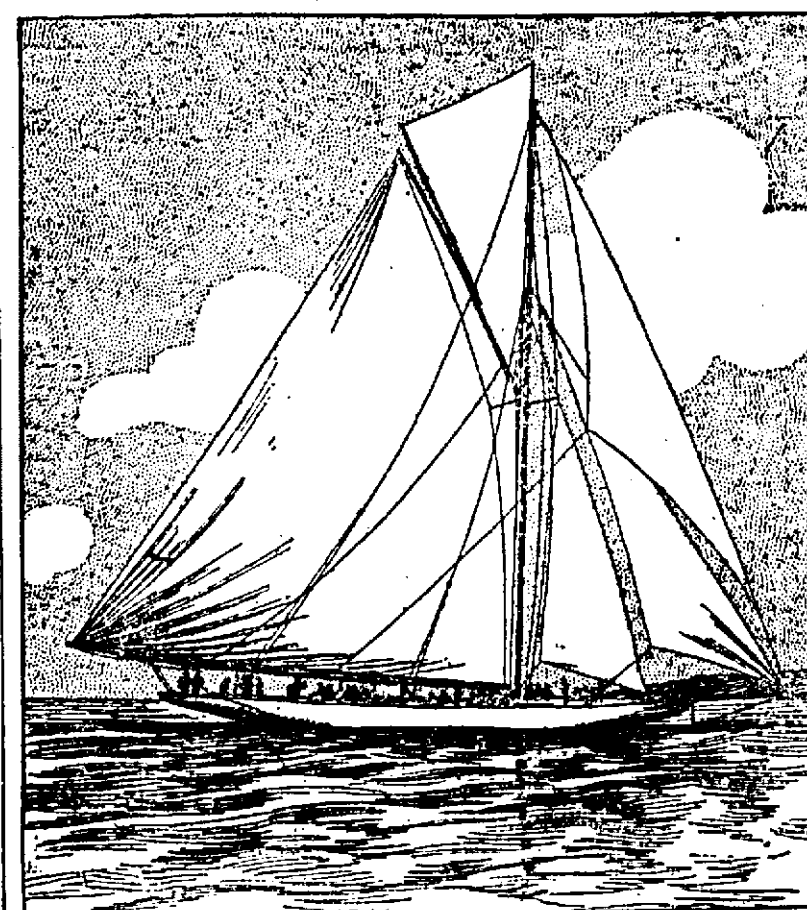

From the America to Reliance—fifty-two years of yacht building and racing—embraces the greatest international sporting era ever known, and while styles, types and general details have all changed in that time, the prize—the America's cup—which was won by the schooner America on Aug. 22, 1851, in English waters, remains the same.

It is generally conceded that Reliance embodies the best that this country can produce in the way of racing sail craft. Consequently a comparison of the earliest and latest boats may be interesting, though they are as dissimilar in every respect as they possibly can be.

In the first place the America, which is still afloat, was a fore and aft schooner, 80 feet on the water line, 94 feet over all, 22½ feet beam and drawing 11½ feet. Her spars were respectively 70½ feet and 81 feet long. Her much coveted trophy with Shamrock III, he will feel well repaid, because he is a thorough sportsman. He will have nothing, personally, to recompense him for all his work, worry and outlay, but in the history of the America's cup he will live as long as the cup lasts. Should Reliance succeed in keeping the cup in this country the men who built and operated her will receive the applause of the nation, and the New York Yacht club will have a handsome piece of silver suitably engraved to commemorate the event.

Those Football Changes.
It is claimed by Walter Camp, the "father of football," that the enforced alteration of the style of play within the twenty-five yard line of the side defending goal should lessen the liability to injury sometimes charged to the steady pounding of one style only. The second general change has been the incorporation of rules that in some cases greatly increase the penalty for unfair tactics, and in others do away with all excuses for indulgence in certain rough plays, at the same time providing for less offensive armament, as, for instance, in the case of the head gear. To make sure that the wishes of the committee are carried out in this matter the duties of the linesman have been enlarged and he has been made practically an assistant to the umpire, and has been given absolute power to deal with certain fouls.

VIEW OF RELIANCE, AMERICA'S HOPE IN THE COMING RACES.

main gaff was 26 feet long, her main boom 58 feet, bowsprit 32 feet, and her three lower sails had a spread of 5,263 feet.

Reliance is the highest development of the modern racing yacht under the measurement rule which makes the rating equal to the water line, plus the square root of the sail area, divided by two. With only ten feet more length

Felts and Tommy Sullivan, Tommy Felts is anxious to fight Tommy Sullivan again. Felts is ready to wager from $1,000 to $1,500 that he can defeat his rival.

WISCONSIN WEATHER FORECAST

Generally fair tonight and Friday.

WHEAT SPECULATION A MENACE.

European mail advices indicate some deficiency in the yield of grain, though the weather toward the middle of July improved giving promise that the impairment of the crops by reason of the unfavorable meteorological conditions early in the season would be less serious than was expected. In Western Europe the crop prospects were, at latest accounts, fair. The yield of wheat in France was estimated at less than the average, while in Germany and Austria the output was expected to be moderate. In Spain and Italy the harvest is good, in Roumania it is poor and in Russia reports from the principal wheat sections are favorable. Taking Europe as a whole the production will be much less than that of last year. In India, however, the crop which was harvested last spring is considerable greater than that of the previous year and the yield is larger than for the past eighteen years. The output in Australia is much in excess of that of 1902, when the drought nearly annihilated the crop. No estimate can yet be made of the yield in Argentina, whence European supplies have heretofore been drawn, but in Canada and especially in Manitoba, the yield is abundant and large exports to Europe are looked for during the current season.

It will be seen by the above summary of the foreign wheat conditions and prospects that while there will probably be a good demand from Europe for our wheat to meet deficiencies in the yield of this grain, there are other important wheat growing countries which are in a position to compete with the United States for this European trade and the extent of this competition will be governed by the price at which the grain can be marketed at Liverpool. If speculators at our grain distributing points should take advantage of a temporarily urgent demand for our wheat for export and if they should gain control of options on the grain to such extent as to establish an artificial price for the staple, the foreign buyers would most likely contract for Indian wheat or buy the grain in other countries where there was a surplus and thus not only defeat the aims of speculators, but contribute materially to reduce the volume of exports from this country to Europe. Moreover, as already noted, Canada and Manitoba will this season have an abundance of wheat for export and indeed, these sections will be in a better position in this respect than ever before. Therefore, British Columbia would be a most active competitor of the United States, should speculators here attempt to force prices of the staple to abnormally high figures.

Successful manipulation of markets for exportable commodities depend upon the foreign demand, the local supply and the cash requisite to conduct the deal. The demand may be good and indeed urgent, but if the supply cannot be controlled, or if in attempting to control this the resulting high prices shall divert the demand to equally favored countries in respect of available stocks, then they result in loss. Such operations cannot be conducted without money or credits and these are not procurable except from banks or other institutions on pledge of acceptable collateral. The rate of such accommodation may be so tempting as to induce lenders to assume the risk of taking as security the grain, but the risk will increase in proportion to temporary success which attends the manipulation of the market price of the staple. Should deals fall the lenders might be involved in loss provided the borrower were embarrassed with excessive stocks of grain at declining prices or if the condition of the market should be such, owing to the diversion to other countries of the export demand as to make realization upon collateral difficult.

In view of the experience of some banks which have assisted in the promotion of corners in commodities it would seem unwise for lending institutions too freely to loan upon grain, should they be called upon during the current season to assist, through such loans, in the manipulation of this staple. Producers rarely profit by abnormally high prices for their grain and scarcely ever do they realize their expectations when they yield to temptation and withhold their produce in the hope of securing better prices. It would seem therefore to be the most desirable that banks should refrain from in any manner contributing to the schemes of speculators and that the producers of the commodities should as freely as possible forward their staples to the distributing points promptly upon the completion of the harvest. The yield of wheat in the United States promises to be abundant if not entirely unprecedented and the average price which will be obtainable through normal conditions of the market ought to be satisfactory to every producer. Any undue advance in this price will be of little benefit to the grower; it will most likely involve the speculator in loss and it will increase the risk of lenders who promote manipulation.—Financier.

OUR COUNTRY.

It is a lesson to all nations particularly to the United States to note with what deference the world as a whole treats us. It is no longer the back woods citizens with bears and Indians howling about, but polished and finished gentlemen of the 20th century that has brought this about. Shirt sleeve diplomacy in name but never did a Tallyrand or a Pitt or a Beaconsfield have questions that involved such a nicety of precision to handle as have Blaine, Hay and lastly Bowen had to handle. Self praise is not out of place when one considers the greatness with which matters of international importance have been handled within recent times and the nicety with which nations older in the arts of diplomacy than the United States have given away to the wishes of the republic of the western world. Starting with John Jay and Benjamin Franklin, America has reason to be proud of its diplomatic agents. Firm hands have been at the head of the government and cool heads have dictated policies which have made the rulers of the old world bow to the rising glory of our greatness. It is not always necessary that a nation have great armies and great fleets to back its demands but it is good policy. America came into its existence with no navy and no army but a few irregular state troops. In rebellion against their King and sovereign. Today we have a navy, an army and a government that is the pivot of the whole civilized world. It has been the growth of a century and more. Not a mushroom growth but a steady consistent growth that bids defiance at the whole world to down. Made up of home genius people with the Saxon element predominating we are a truly Utopian nation, the dream of sages of past ages. The three greatest powers of Europe, Russia, Germany and England bow to us in deference. We hold the key note to the whole situation. Jealous of each other they are afraid at open rupture not knowing how our sympathies may turn. Italy, France and Austria would heed us if they dared but their better judgment tells them to beware and we are left monarchs of the western world. Republics have always been adduced to be guilty of jingoism but cool and collected heads at Washington have kept this fault from predominating in the United States. We were forced into war with Spain and came out with glory. We have acquired territory in the far east that gives us the key to the Chinese situation and while our anti-imperialists have proclaimed against the policy we still hold and guard against the encroachments of stronger powers on our weaker sister nations in the Orient. From a republic of ragged backwoodsmen, Indian fighters and farmers we have become a nation of merchants, manufacturers, inventors and exporters until the whole world bows to us and our ever growing power.

PICKLE FACTORY HARD AT WORK

HOHENADEL'S THE SCENE OF A BUSY INDUSTRY.

PICKLING HAS COMMENCED

Process of Turning Cucumbers Into Delicious Pickles, Now
Under Way.

The cucumber crop has begun to come in at the Hohenadel canning factory and many bushels of the small cucumbers are being daily emptied into the big vats where they undergo the first salting process. It is thought that this year's crop will yield between two and three hundred bushels to the acre. The factory will take only the smaller sized cucumbers, from one to three inches in length, using the little fellows as pickles, and the longer ones for dill or sweet pickles. The company has over a thousand acres contracted for and the cucumbers will be shipped in from a large number of surrounding towns.

Pickling Begun
The pickle department at the canning factory has already begun work on the first lots that have come in from the country. The odor in the rooms where the pickles are put up is sweet with the scent of the spices used in the operation. First the pickles are placed in large tubs where they are soaked in brine until they are "salt cured." This condition is ascertained by the appearance of the cucumber when it is broken in two. The time they are kept in these vats varies but it is important that they are thoroughly salt cured before the next step is started. The salted cucumbers are next "processed," hardened treated with vinegar and spice and made into sweet pickles.

The work of putting up a vast amount of sauer kraut has recently been finished and the cans of cabbage are now being packed and shipped. Between ten and twelve thousand cases for these cans have been made and are ready to be sent away.
Corn Looks Well
A force of men are now at work putting up cases for the corn crop, which will soon be arriving at the factory. It is thought that the yield this season will be very good. There are now in stock at the factory seventy-five thousand cases to send out the cans of corn in this fall, and more cases will be needed to finish the crop. The company has about one thousand acres planted to corn which promises well at this time and besides this great amount there are another thousand acres contracted for elsewhere.

FUNNY PIG WITH BIG HAY CROP

He Is Small, But Makes an Excellent Basis for a Lawn.

R. E. Finley of this city is the owner of a small pig that is quite a curiosity. One day this spring he sprinkled some grass seed on the porkers back and awaited developments keeping the seed well moistened. It soon began to sprout and gradually grow until now, the growth is over an inch in height and is still growing luxuriantly. Unless the grass is soon trimmed the pig will resemble a wooly dog, but the heavy covering does not seem to bother the animal at all, perhaps because it is made of earthenware. Anyway it is only a few inches long and stands in a small tray in Mr. Finley's window.

GOT AWAY WITH A GOLD WATCH

ROBBER VISITS FARM OF EDWARD KEYES.

REVOLVER IS ALSO MISSING

Marauder Entered Through Window
While No One Was at Home—
Have Description of Suspect.

Robbery was committed on the farm of Edward Keyes north of the county farm, between four and five o'clock yesterday afternoon according to the report which Mrs. Keyes made to the police today. A search is now being made for the suspected man of whom a good description is furnished.

No one was in the farm house at the time the missing articles which consist of a gold watch and a revolver were taken. Mrs. Keyes was in this city and discovered the theft in her return.

An open window indicated the means of entrance used by the marauder. In a flower bed in front of there was the imprint of a shoe.

MRS. CLARE W. GETTER.

She is Treasurer of a Railroad and a Capable Official.

Mrs. Clare Getter, treasurer of the Kishwaukee Valley railroad at Belleville, Pa., has filled the office successfully for eight years and has proved that a woman can be a capable and efficient officer of such a corporation. She enjoys the unique distinction of being one of two women in the world who hold official positions and take active part in the management of railway systems.

Mrs. Getter is the wife of Dr. J. P. Getter, one of the original projectors of the road and its general manager since its completion in June, 1894. She was one of the original stockholders, and, taking an active interest in its success and wishing to assist her husband, band, who had a large practice in addition to his duties as a railroad manager, she early became acquainted with the details of the financial management and was elected treasurer.

All bills are sent direct to her. She pays the salaries of officers and men, keeps the company's bank account and assists in making out the interstate commerce reports. Her official signature is "Clare W. Getter." As a consequence a great deal of mail matter comes to her addressed Mr. Clare W. Getter.

The most trying ordeal of her connection with railroad management came to her one day when in the absence of all the other officers of the road a hasty request for a special train to carry a large party from Reedsville to Gibbon Park was referred to her. She quietly took her hands from a pan of dough which she was kneading in her kitchen, gave the necessary orders, looked after the details of change in passing points so that there would be no error that might result in accident and resumed her baking.—Philadelphia Press.

Serving the Table.

A few simple rules may be laid down for serving the table. As a general rule, the maid removes the large service plates used under the soup plates at the time she brings the filled plates. Sometimes when the service plates are unusually handsome they are allowed to remain on the table until the dessert is served, so that the guests may always have plates before them.

The maid passes the larger dishes and plates by hand, the smaller dishes holding olives, bonbons and sugar being passed on a tray. She serves all of the dishes from the left. Tea, coffee and beverages are served from the right. The guest may never take the plate from the waitress, but must permit her to place it on the table before him, says the Philadelphia North American.

Finger bowls should be used only with fruit courses. When the dish is a bit out of the ordinary it is quite the thing for the hostess to cause herself to be first served, when she begins to eat, thus demonstrating to the guests the proper way to eat it. When the hostess is not served first it is the rule to begin with the lady next to her on the right and begin with a different guest with each course, so that no one shall be always last.

The French always serve the host or hostess first, a custom calculated to put the guests at ease. For luncheon it is best to serve hot rolls tucked into napkins rather than bread on plates. A popular innovation is the thin sandwich of bread and butter.

The Allowance Question.

Some women are violently opposed in theory to the allowance plan. "I don't want to be paid $20 or $50 a month by my husband, as if I were an employee," they say. "Marriage is a partnership. I am one of the partners. It is true that my husband is the working partner and that it is convenient for us both that he should act as the cashier of the firm, but I should no more think of stipulating for the payment of so much spending money a month than I should of stipulating for two cups of coffee at breakfast every morning. If I wanted $200 I should know that I could have it, if it was there to have. If, on the other hand, I had no use for money at the time it would not worry me in the least not to get it. In a word, I have too much confidence in my husband and too much pride in my wifehood to clamor for a fixed allowance. I didn't marry my husband to make money out of him, anyway."—New York Tribune.

Massachusetts Women.
The special report of the Massachusetts bureau of statistics of labor on "Sex in Industry" shows that women no longer need to depend on men for a living. According to the figures, woman's emancipation is about complete. More than 88 per cent of the women workers of Massachusetts are unmarried. They prefer freedom, work and income of their own and care nothing for romance. Divorces, too, have increased, being about one to every eighteen marriages. These are the answers to the special census taken: One table shows 44 women engaged as bank drivers, teamsters, etc.; 727 messengers and errand girls, 5 butchers, 7 marble cutters, 10 brick masons, 245 photographers and 5 steam fitters, besides numerous other occupations usually filled by men. More than 100,000 are in factories, 79,000 servants, and 20,000 practice professions.

Antitoxin in Diphtheria.

Antitoxin in full strength and quality never yet failed to cure a case of diphtheria when administered on the first day of the disease and but rarely when on the second or third day. Just as certainly when administered within even three days after exposure to a case it will prevent contracting the deadly disease. In every case of suspicious sore throat give antitoxin at once and in large amount. It can do no possible harm if the disease should prove not to be diphtheria. It will save life in ninety-nine cases out of a hundred if it be diphtheria. The foregoing statement is made by Dr. A. D. Reynolds, commissioner of health of Chicago, in an official publication.

Why She Didn't Marry.

I once knew a jolly maiden lady of a certain age, and no fatter was she in the world's vineyard, but a sturdy supporter of herself and her widowed mother and family of younger children. This feminine family pillar was wont to give a certain reply when the ancient question, "Why do you not marry?" was put to her by elderly bachelors. There are always people obtuse and stupid enough to propound this silly question. The answer of my heroine invariably was, "I am determined not to marry until I can support a husband in the style to which he has been accustomed."—Woman's Home Companion.

Enused Doors.

An English decorator notes that doors which are not required for any reason for their usual purpose may be locked and utilized in decoration. "In old houses where the walls are thick they form deep recesses, and by placing four or five shelves in these they are transformed into excellent bookshelves, over or rather across which a handsome curtain may be drawn. When the recess is not deep enough to accommodate books narrow enameled shelves will serve to fill with old china, bric-a-brac and photos, and the effect produced by these arrangements is in general uncommonly good."

Your Finger Nails.

Don't clip your finger nails with the scissors; use a good file. Clipping causes the nails to become coarse and heavy and rough. The general rule in filing the nails is to have them follow the shape of the finger tip, but a narrower, better effect can be obtained if they are left a trifle longer in the center. They should be rounded, of course; never pointed. Claws are no longer in vogue. They never were in vogue with people of good taste and fine sensibilities.

Too Much System.

Don't make of yourself a purely domestic machine. Order, system and cleanliness are of course imperative in the well regulated home, but don't be so dreadfully systematic that you keep the other members of your household in terror of violating some fixed rule. Keep in touch with the world, in harmony with your husband and children, and if you have any ornamental accomplishments cultivate them, and you will get from life the best it has to offer.

Dainty Luncheon Cloths.

Luncheon cloths may be used in various ways for small table covers, as centers over cloths or on polished tables for luncheons, such as fruit, salad, Dutch, chafing dish or full course luncheon. Some of these cloths made of the oriental embroidery are very effective. When a white and gold effect is wished, as in the horse chestnut or buckeye design, the gold thread is used.

The Kitchen Walls.

No one in these days thinks of papering or whitewashing a kitchen. The walls should be oil painted in a flat finish—that is, without varnish—and if it is properly done they may be washed freely without injury to the surface. There are also several patent wall coverings resembling light oil cloth that are put on like paper.

Blackheads.

It is said that a lotion composed of two ounces each of rosewater, alcohol and glycerin, with one teaspoonful of borax, is a certain cure for blackheads. After bathing the face night and morning rub in with the hand.

In a woman a long, narrow foot always shows high breeding, and a small foot does not always appear desirable, as the exceedingly small ones mean a weak and submissive character.

"Can you inform me if there are any colleges for women in Germany?" some one asked the secretary of Herlin university. "No, thank God!" was the reply.

There are more than fifty women "drummers" in the United States in the employ of commercial houses.

Nine hours' sleep at night and a brief nap during the day is a first class youth preserver.

Weekly Market Report.

The week was mainly favorable for the completion of haying, and the harvesting of barley, although work was interfered with to some extent, in the northern counties by the heavy rains early in the week. In a few localities the rains were excessive and damaged corn and lodged oats badly. The latter part of the week was dry and decidedly cool for the season, with light frost in exposed places on Friday morning. No serious damage was caused by the frost. Light and scattered showers occurred generally on Saturday and Sunday.

Corn: The backward condition, of corn still exists and improvement during the week was generally not marked. While the midday temperatures have been sufficiently high for rapid growth, the nights, especially during the latter part of the week were decidedly cool. A few correspondents in the southern counties report the crop in satisfactory condition, but elsewhere it is generally considered unpromising.

Spring Wheat and Rye: These crops are maturing rapidly and will be ready to cut next week; wheat is rusted to some extent but promises a fair crop.

Oats and Barley: Oats are ripening rapidly and some cutting has been done in the southern counties. Rust is very general over the state, and will probably shorten the yield. In a few localities there is complaint of lodging, but generally the straw stands well.

Barley: Is practically all cut and probably one-half the crop in stack. Some threshing has been done and the yield is reported fair to good, although generally not quite so good as last year. The quality of grain is excellent.

Hay: Considerable wild hay was secured during the week. This crop especially on low lands has been shortened considerably considerably by the heavy rains and consequent high water in the streams.

Tame hay is all secured and a heavy crop. Second growth clover is in promising condition.

Potatoes are generally in satisfactory condition although there is some complaint in central counties. Bugs are very numerous and doing some damage.

Tobacco: The past week was quite favorable for tobacco, which is reported in very excellent condition. During the latter part of the week growth was retarded to some extent by the cool nights, but generally this crop is making rapid advancement.

Minor Crops: Gardens are in good condition and generally furnishing an abundance of vegetables of good quality. Field peas and sugar beets are reported as making good growth. Fruit: The apple crop will not be large, but generally of good quality. Wild blackberries are ripening rapidly and in most sections of the state will be a heavy crop.

Southern Section

Iron Ridge, Dodge county: Barley all cut, but will be below the average; oats ready to cut; promises large crop; corn growing rapidly; potatoes good.—Wm. F. Miller.

Tiffany, Rock county: Grain cutting mostly finished; oats very light. Barley fine; threshing commenced; are too cool for corn and tobacco.—Chas. W. Stark.

Westoy, Vernon county: A light rain on Friday; cool weather during week; harvesting of oats is advancing rapidly; good crop; barley mostly in stack.—Paul T. Paulson.

Union Grove, Racine county: Favorable weather for farm work; oat harvest well under way; barley all in stack; good crop; rye mostly in stack; fair crop.—H. C. Williams.

W. M. WILSON, Section Director.

HEAD OF THE VANDERBILTS.

The Senior William K., Who Is Belonging Home His Bride.

The ultra fashionables of New York and Newport are all astir over the announcement that William K. Vanderbilt, Sr., who was married a couple of months ago in St. Mark's church, London, is soon to return to this country with his bride.

Mr. Vanderbilt has been twice married, his first wife, from whom he was divorced in 1895, being now the wife of Oliver H. P. Belmont, and there is no little speculation among the smart set as to whether the relations between the two families will be amicable or otherwise.

The present Mrs. Vanderbilt has been twice widowed. Her first husband was MRS. WILLIAM K. VANDERBILT, SR.

Samuel S. Sands, Jr., a wealthy New Yorker, who was killed while riding to hounds in 1888. After her husband's death she went abroad with her two children and in 1890 was married to Louis M. Rutherford, member of the well known Rutherford family of New York, which has been prominent socially for several generations. Mr. Rutherford died two years ago.

As Miss Anna H. Harriman, daughter of Oliver H. Harriman, Sr., Mrs. Vanderbilt was one of the belles of New York a dozen or so years ago. She is a perfect blond, with oval face and deep blue eyes. She is wealthy in her own right, having recently inherited a large fortune from her mother, and she also has the estates of her former husbands. The Harriman family is one of the most prominent in the business and social life of New York.

William Kissam Vanderbilt is the second son of William H. Vanderbilt, is fifty-four years old and is the undisputed head of the family in all business matters. He is keen, alert and clear headed and has vastly increased the fortune left him by his father. He is said to be worth considerably over $50,000,000.

By the terms of the divorce Mr. Vanderbilt pays $250,000 a year alimony to his first wife, whose present husband, Mr. O. H. P. Belmont, is himself a millionaire several times over. Her eldest daughter, also the daughter of Mr. Vanderbilt, is Consuelo, duchess of Marlborough. The duchess attended the wedding of her father in London.

SEEKS TO OUST GLASS TRUST

Federal Company of Columbus, O., Appeals to Valentine Law.

Columbus, O., Aug. 6.—Suit to oust the so-called "glass trust," the National Glass Company, of Pennsylvania, embracing eighteen companies of the twenty manufacturing pressed glass ware, tableware and tumblers in the United States, from operating in Ohio was filed in the circuit court by Attorney General Sheets at the instance of the Federal Glass Company of Columbus.

The Glass Company of Cleveo, Ind., and the Federal company are the only independent companies. The suit is based on the Valentine anti-trust law and it is asserted that the National company was formed to limit production, manipulate prices and stifle competition.

George Heatt, formerly of Washington, Pa., against whom the National company now has pending in the federal courts a suit to enforce a contract in which he agreed to quit the glass business, is president of the Federal company.

HAY FEVER ABOLISHED

Relief for This Malady Discovered by Medical Science—Breathe Hyomel.

Among the important additions made to medical science in recent years, none is more notable than the positive announcement of a cure for hay fever.

While this disease is not regarded as fatal, it is certainly a most distressing malady, and if anything can be devised to cure it, a great boon will be conferred upon the human race.

Exhaustive experiments with Hyomel prove that this treatment will prevent all attacks of hay fever, if used two or three weeks before the annual appearance of the disease, and that it may be relied upon it used faithfully after the disease has begun, to relieve at once and afford a speedy cure.

People's Drug Co., have sold hundreds of Hyomel outfits for the treatment of the diseases of the respiratory organs under the agreement to refund the money if Hyomel did not afford relief.

In selling Hyomel for the cure of hay fever, they will continue this equitable plan, and want all who are subject to this distressing malady to begin its use at once, with the understanding that if it does not give satisfaction, the purchase price is to be refunded.

Stomach dosing cannot cure hay fever. A change of climate is the only treatment that has heretofore aborted an attack and Hyomel which is breathed through a neat pocket inhaler coming with every outfit acts upon this principle, giving in your own home, a climate like that of the White Mountains or other health resorts.

HEAVY FAILURE IN WALL STREET

STOCK VALUES TAKE A TUMBLE

Outside Investors Are Shy of the Market. Having Bought at What Appeared to Be Low Figures Only to See Another Drop.

New York, Aug. 6.—Quoted security values declined to a new level yesterday, two more firms were forced to suspend, one with liabilities estimated at between $4,000,000 and $5,000,000 and the other a house of no particular importance, and Wall street sentiment reached the lowest depth of pessimism since the culmination of the great bull market a year ago. Further trouble is momentarily expected. The reason the market did not rally after the failures were announced, as it did week before last on the announcement of the Taylor and Stowefallures, is that the financial community believed that failure of even greater proportions were impending.

Fear Other Failures.
The Stowe and Taylor failures were thought at the time to clear the atmosphere. Those of yesterday had the effect merely of suggesting greater disasters yet to come. It is quite probable, of course, that the evidences of further trouble are being greatly magnified, but judges of stock market phenomena have been fooled so often during the last few months that they are reluctant now to hold out encouragement.

It is remarkable that on each succeeding low level the investment demand for stocks has been lighter. The explanation is that investors have repeatedly taken stocks at what they believed to be the bottom only to see prices go lower, and each time they are fooled they become more skeptical. A lot of selling was for out-of-town account, banks everywhere calling loans on collateral.

Confidence Is Lacking.
It is a fearful harvest that Wall street is reaping. Technically the situation must be improving. Commission houses are carrying fewer stocks and borrowing less money than at any previous time in five years. If they had their enormous loans on stock margined at the banks for 20 per cent when prices were forty to fifty points higher and have much smaller loans similarly margined now, the situation in that respect must be stronger than it was a year ago.

The trouble is that everybody is scared and confidence is lacking. It is almost impossible for one who is submerged in the stock market atmosphere to be optimistic. It is impossible to venture a really sane opinion as to the immediate future of values. It can only be said that many stocks are now selling at prices that make them attractive to the investor, and if confidence could only be restored, investment buying would begin on a large scale.

This is now the cheapest security market in the world, paying the investor larger returns on his money than he could find in either stocks or bonds anywhere else. This fact sooner or later must tell. Pessimism, once it gains the swing it has had and is having, goes to extremes. A year ago bankers were saying to themselves: "How shall we get prices down without a crash?" They are saying now: "Well, we have got them down."

Cause of Failure.
A member of the firm, in speaking of the causes which led to the suspension of Sharp & Bryan, said: "The firm was carrying a long line of Virginia-Carolina Chemical, with other stocks for which there is a doubtful market. There was a deliberate raid against Virginia-Carolina Chemical. Some of the firm's loans naturally contained Virginia-Carolina Chemical as part of the collateral. The drive against this stock reduced the firm to the necessity of substituting other collateral or taking up the loans. The decline was so rapid that this was not possible, and as a result it became necessary to suspend."

In February, 1902, Virginia-Carolina Chemical sold at 123½ and common at 66½. The preferred yesterday reached 80 and the common 21. The authorized capital stock of the company consists of $12,000,000 preferred and $38,000,000 common. During the last year $70,000,000 of bonds for the purchase of additional plants was floated.

Mr. Bryan was reputed a year ago to be worth between $2,000,000 and $3,000,000, and was said to have placed an order early last spring for a steam yacht to cost $500,000.

UNION MEN WANT RECOGNITION

Strike for a Reduction in Pay in Order to Secure It.

New York, Aug. 6.—Union men recently employed by a firm of machinists in Jersey City have struck practically for a reduction from $3.75 to $3 for a day's work. The men were brought from other points and paid more than the union scale, but the proprietors assert they demanded recognition of the union, regardless of the consequence of the reduction in wages.

Hill's Wealth.
St. Paul, Aug. 6.—James J. Hill's personal property, including stocks and bonds, is valued at only $136,095. At least this is the return of his wealth found on the assessor's books.

RAILWAY GRANTS INCREASE TO MEN

MINOR DETAILS TO BE SETTLED

Most Serious Complaint of the Men Was in Connection With Double-Headers, Which They Claim Compel One Crew to Do Work of Two.

Chicago, Aug. 6.—An amicable settlement has been reached between the Rock Island Railway system and the conductors and trainmen. Wages will be increased and the working rules revised.

At a conference between the railroad officials and the committees, which was attended by Edgar E. Clark, grand chief of the conductors, and W. G. Lee, vice grand master of the trainmen, the company announced its intention to grant the increase of wages. According to the agreement, which takes effect Aug. 1, passenger conductors will receive 12 per cent more than the scale Jan. 1, 1902, which was $125, and freight conductors will get a 15 per cent increase over the scale of 3 cents a mile. The increase to freight trainmen is 15 per cent over the former scale of 2 cents a mile, and passenger brakemen will get an increase of 12 per cent over their scale, which varied in different parts of the country. The system of double-heading engines on freight trains will practically be abolished, except in mountainous country, or on trains of not more than thirty cars.

Did Not Make Threats.

There are still some minor details to the agreement, which have not yet been perfected, and the conferences will continue until the whole matter has been settled. Union officials declare that no threats were made of a strike, but they did inform the company that the trainmen had voted authority to call a strike unless their demands were granted.

Edgar E. Clark of the conductors said: "In my opinion there was never any great danger of a strike. We could not see how the Rock Island could fail to grant our demands for a new agreement in view of the fact that every other road in the country has signed agreements with us since January. The question of double-heading engines on freight trains needed regulating on nearly all the roads, as well as some other operating rules. The tendency of railroad managers has been to carry the greatest amount of tonnage in one unit—that is, to one train. Originally double engines were used for the purpose of using up the old type small engines that they might be replaced with new and more powerful ones."

Ground for Complaint.

"This was all right, because the cars were made larger, but some of the managers were not content with this, and double-headed their most powerful engines, running practically two trains as one and with one crew. This method made the work of the crew harder and the hours longer on account of 'stalling,' and we felt it to be unfair."

"Although these big units made a good showing on paper, I think we have succeeded in convincing most of the managers that it is doubtful economy in the end. The conditions on different roads vary according to topographical conditions, but in the main double-heading has been abolished, except in the mountains or on trains of thirty cars or more."

It is declared that had the Rock Island made the announcement several months ago when negotiations were first commenced of their willingness to grant wage increase, the strike vote would never have been resorted to.

THE UNION OF TWO ESTATES

[Original.]

Both estates were very large, the one consisting of hundreds of acres, the other of thousands. Wadsworth Towle was the owner of the smaller; Helen De Veaux, would be the owner of the larger. It is an old story that young people of opposite sexes owning adjoining estates are induced by their elders to marry, thus carrying out the modern commercial plan of "community of interest," and so it was in this case. Towle went to college, then traveled abroad. Miss De Veaux, after completing her education, chafed that she had been born rich. She plied for a vacation.

One June day Towle was wandering about his grounds and before he knew it found himself in the De Veaux estate. A young woman in the costume of a trained nurse was resting on a board seat between two trees reading or studying. Towle, who had been carried through a long illness by one of this profession and had a great admiration for them as a class, raised his hat politely.

"I beg pardon," he said. "Will you tell me who is ill at the house?"

She hesitated to reply.

"No matter," he added. "I have no right to pry into family secrets."

"Miss De Veaux is not very well."

"Indeed, I have—I mean we have not been informed of her illness."

"Why should you be informed?"

It occurred to Towle to play a part and learn something about the lady whose interests and his were identical.

"Well, I am Mr. Towle's business man, secretary, general utility man. He lives on the adjoining estate. Had I heard of Miss De Veaux's illness I should have suggested the propriety of his writing to express his concern. He would have directed me to write a letter, and in this case he would have copied it in his own hand and sent it to Miss De Veaux."

"Bless me, is that the way these rich people express sympathy?"

"Usually."

"But I thought there was some talk of Mr. Towle's marrying Miss De Veaux. How could he be so coldly methodical with her?"

"He has never seen her. His family has long owned its estate here, hers only a few years, during which both Mr. Towle and Miss De Veaux have been getting an education."

"I see. Doesn't he rather shrink from such a cold blooded union?"

"He's a practical fellow, with no romantic nonsense about him."

"Then he's not like Miss De Veaux, who is in full sympathy with that romance which is at the bottom of every true heart."

"I am surprised. I supposed Miss De Veaux was rather practical. I have heard that she is proposing when she comes into this estate to organize a staff to assist her in devoting her immense income to practical charity."

"Her postgraduate education, so to speak, is directed with that end in view."

Towle sat down on the other end of the board and beat the grass with his cane.

"I wouldn't suppose," he said, "that Mr. Towle would care to marry that sort of woman. They are very well to admire at a distance, but they don't work well in double harness."

"I'm quite sure Miss De Veaux wouldn't care to marry a man who would write her a letter of sympathy drawn by his business man."

Towle sat for a few minutes with a sober look on his face, then turned to the nurse with a smile. "We are settling the affairs of our betters as though they were our own. Suppose we drop them and chat about other topics—that is, if you don't mind making an acquaintance in this way."

"A trained nurse can't be squeamish."

The pair talked for an hour, then parted, to meet when the nurse came off duty for an hour of recreation the next day. In this way they kept up a series of meetings for several weeks. Meanwhile Towle had sent a letter of sympathy with flowers to Miss De Veaux, asking to be allowed to call as soon as she was able to receive callers.

One day he received a formal note signed by Miss Edna Knapp, Miss De Veaux's secretary, informing him that she was quite recovered and would be pleased to see him. Towle was somewhat startled at this method of communication, but Miss De Veaux might be still too weak to do her own correspondence. He did not much care, for he had been captivated by her nurse.

When Wadsworth Towle was ushered into the drawing room where Helen De Veaux, arrayed in plain but becoming costume, awaited him he started. Miss De Veaux and her trained nurse were one and the same person.

"Pardon me sending you a note through my secretary, Mr. Towle. I should have made an exception to my rule in your case, but since your note of condolence to me came from your business man I presumed you wouldn't care. Were you aware that he sent me the flowers, or did they come under general instructions for cases of illness?"

"I have called to say," replied Towle with a quick recovery of his equanimity, "that all hope of our uniting these properties is ended. I have fallen in love with your nurse."

"The nurse you met," she said, "is only a student. She is preparing herself to organize a staff, etc., and had just come in from her studies when she found you on the De Veaux property and recognized you at once. She has been graduated, and you will know her as a nurse no longer."

And this is how the Towle and De Veaux properties came to be united."

A Wild Raid In The Mountains

A FORTIETH ANNIVERSARY WAR STORY
August 5-31, 1903

(Copyright, 1903, by G. L. Kilmer.)
AUG. 26, 1863, General Averell's Federal raiders closed a drawn battle with the Confederates at Rocky Gap. In the mountains of West Virginia. In these days of realistic chronicles Averell's rough ride through southeastern Virginia would make a sensation. It was one of those expeditions which give the troops no hint in hardship for a doubtful gain or no gain at all, with all the risk and excitement of guerrilla fighting.

West Virginia, after it had been cleared of the Confederates in 1861, had no positions of importance to be conquered, but it was a wild, inaccessible country between the seat of war in Virginia and the great west, very tempting as a hiding place for armed columns wishing to form in secret and sail forth without warning. It was also the salt producing field for the south. The Confederates kept partial control, especially in the salt regions; the Federals didn't think it worth the cost of an army big enough to keep the Confederates out.

Averell's clash with the enemy at Rocky Gap was the wind up of a ride covering nearly 1,000 miles actual travel. The last stage of it was a continuous fight with hands sent out to harass the march and drive him out of West Virginia. He left Winchester, in the Shenandoah valley, Aug. 5 and crossed the Blue Ridge, led by a slender advance guard under his aide-de-camp, Captain Baron Paul von Koenig, a foreign volunteer. About the same time General John D. Imboden, a Confederate leader reared in the region, started south by roads farther west, intending to beat Averell in the race and join his own force to the defenders of the district Averell was aiming to conquer. Imboden was a mountain and a horseback fighter. He was just in from piloting Lee's trains through South Mountain and across the Potomac on his retreat from Gettysburg. The first day out from Winchester von Koenig picked up ten of Imboden's scouting troopers and that was the beginning of a constant warfare between the two armies. The second day von Koenig captured another band, but after a few miles' march the guard fell into ambush and was captured with all the prisoners. Only a handful was engaged in the ambush, but a dozen men were killed and wounded.

The fifth day's march brought the column to Petersburg. Averell had been told by his superior to wait at that point for shoes and nails to put his horses in condition for the long march ahead. Imboden had already given him warning of what was to come. The Federal troopers carried no rations beyond hard bread, coffee and sugar, and lived off the country for the rest. The foragers encountered armed bands of Confederates and brought in reports showing that the country was alive to the danger of the raid and the enemy pressing forward all available men to defend the passes to the salt works.

The nails and shoes came to the front several days late, and then it was found that the ammunition was short. After another wait of two days Averell decided that further delay might be more dangerous than going ahead, for the enemy would be prepared to dispute his march if given too much time. Moving his main column on to Monterey, he sent a detachment to Franklin to destroy the salt works there. At Monterey the raiders found a Confederate court in session and arrested all the officials. Through the courts, the Confederates kept a hold upon the people. Imboden had ridden into Monterey the day before Averell arrived, devising a plan to attack the Federals at Petersburg. Finding that Averell was on the march, he posted a detachment on the Huntersville road to ambush the column. Averell made a feint of attacking Imboden with a part of his command and moved the rest on a by-road rapidly to Huntersville.

Beyond Huntersville the raiders entered the heart of the enemy's country. A new column under the Confederate General Jackson was soon met with. To guard his rear Averell sent a regiment back to Huntersville and broke up his column into bands to cover the several points on his front and to destroy the salt works. The morning of the 26th he massed his troops, consisting of five regiments and a battery, and marched across the mountain to White Sulphur Springs. When the column was strung out passing a narrow gorge and extending over four miles, Baron Koenig rode back from the front with word that the Confederates were disputing his advance and he could not proceed without reinforcements. Averell gave him two squadrons, and just as he dashed off to the front the Confederates opened fire with cannon.

Averell started the whole column forward through a narrow pass which opened out into a valley a mile in length and inclosed on each side by rugged rocky heights covered with a stunted growth of pine oak and chestnut. The moment the leading squadron of Federals appeared in the opening the Confederates turned their guns upon it. A jutting cliff on the right of the valley afforded cover for the horses of the Second and Eighth West Virginia cavalry, and the troopers dismounted. The second climbing to the summit of the hill on the right and the Eighth on the left.

Under the protection of the lines formed on the summit Averell brought his battery to the front and posted it on a knoll, where it opened fire with accuracy on the enemy's cannon. Meanwhile the Third West Virginia and Fourteenth Pennsylvania cavalry filed slowly through the narrow gap, the troopers dismounted and formed in the valley, making the line continuous from right to left. The Confederates pressed so close upon the battery that the guns were compelled to use canister. The enemy was finally driven back and the battery advanced to a better position.

The Confederate leader, General Sam Jones, had been deceived as to Averell's intentions; otherwise the chance for an ambush at Rocky Gap would have been used to better advantage. General Jones believed that Averell would keep close to the Blue Ridge and cross eastward into the Shenandoah valley and attack Staunton. It was late on the night of the 25th when Jones discovered that the raiders had turned westward from Huntersville and were moving toward the Springs. Taking the brigade of Colonel Patton he made a night march and reached the gap just as Averell's advance rode into the pass.

Finding that he was too late in the field to hold the pass Jones drew back, after feeling the fire of Averell's guns, to elevated ground at the end of the valley. Here he posted his right upon a rugged hill and protected his left by a stockade. Averell saw that his foe was temporizing and decided to push the fighting. One gun of the six in his battery had burst and the remaining five were rushed forward to within 600 yards of the enemy. A house in front of Jones' center was occupied by a Federal battalion, but this was soon driven out by a regiment of Confederates which came to the field at double quick. Averell immediately ordered the battery to fire the house with shells.

During the fight at the house Baron von Koenig attempted to lead forward the West Virginians on the summit and flank the enemy in the valley. In spite of desperate fighting this movement failed, and for three hours the contest was one between sharpshooters, who found good cover 100 paces apart.

During the lull in heavy fighting Averell personally reconnoitered the enemy's line from the heights on the right and left. He decided to risk one dash at the enemy's center, and ordered up Captain Bird's squadron of the Fourteenth Pennsylvania. The troopers rode down gallantly, accompanied by the brave von Koenig, who burned to be in every charge. He was shot from the saddle in front of the stockade.

About 300 Confederates left the stockade in a hurry when the cavalry rode up, but a regiment of reserves pushed through the flowing line and drove out the Federals in a desperate fight, which cost the life of Major McNally of the Second West Virginia. Attempts to push the line forward on the right and left during the cavalry charge had failed, and at nightfall Averell found his men short of ammunition and repulsed at every point.

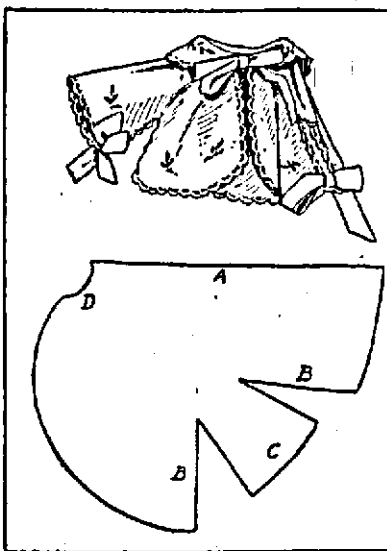

One reason for Averell's boldness was the hope of receiving help from a column under Colonel Seamon, which had been directed to follow his march. No tidings came from Seamon. Without help Averell could not break through the Confederate line. He decided to wait until morning. When morning came the enemy was found to have been re-enforced. Barreling the roads with felled trees the Federals withdrew, marching on the back track through Huntersville and Beverly.

In his retreat as well as in the advance Averell deceived his foe. They looked to find him everywhere except where he actually was. The road was often blocked by barricades placed in his rear by citizens or stray bands of scouts or guerrillas, but there was no attack beyond the usual bushwhacking, and the column finished its wonderful march Aug. 31, with a total loss of 218 men.

holes. The material used for the jacket illustrated is the finest cashmere in a delicate shade of blue. The edge is buttonholed in silk to match, and an embroidered design in forgetmenots lends a pretty touch of embellishment.

Cut the pattern, according to the diagram, to a size to fit the baby. The sack is cut in one piece by folding the cloth on line A and laying on the pattern. The side seams (B B) may be stitched, but it will be found better if they are fastened together by sewing narrow taffeta ribbons on each side and tying together in tiny bows in two places. The sleeve (C) is also closed at seams by bows, and these bows are simply untied when the sack is laundered. The neck is marked D. A ribbon may also be fastened to each side of the front to tie it together. It is simple, easy to make and easy to launder.

Extinction of the Chaperon.

The chaperon bids fair to become extinct in English society. Following a suggestion made by Lady Cavendish Bentinck, dances are being given in the best circles under the rule, "No sheep dogs allowed," and they are becoming more popular every season. Girls are going out alone or in couples in a way that makes their grandmothers hold up their hands in horror. An old lady well known in London society was asked what she thought of the new departure. She said:

"The example of America has taught us that the chaperon is not at all necessary for the maintenance of social decorum in the intercourse of young people. The American man of all classes is said to be chivalrous, and I believe that is owing to the absence of the chaperon. The modern, golf playing, intelligent, well informed English girl has no need of a chaperon. Very often she is better fitted to take care of the chaperon than the chaperon to take care of her."

She Designs Baby Clothes.

A young woman who had gone from one occupation to another in the vain endeavor to earn a comfortable living at last hit by accident upon her proper vocation. She designed a dress for the child of a well to do friend, and the latter was so much pleased with the little garment that she offered to pay the young woman to design others, says the Philadelphia Inquirer. The pleased mother showed the dresses to her friends, and they in turn employed the young woman in like tasks. Thus started, she gradually built up a business, and now she has her shop on the edge of the retail district where scores of mothers visit her. She does little or no actual sewing, but gives almost her whole time to designing garments. She has shown great resourcefulness in adapting various materials to her special needs. Mothers are still telling each other about her, and her business still grows.

Rugs From Matting.

When converting pieces of Chinese matting into rugs do not blind them. The strongest, surest binding you will put on will soon be torn away by the process of unraveling. Instead take the edge of the matting and pull off the fibers until the cotton warp forms a fringe two inches in depth. Knot this by tying the pieces of cotton together, two and two, and you have an indestructible edge to your rug.

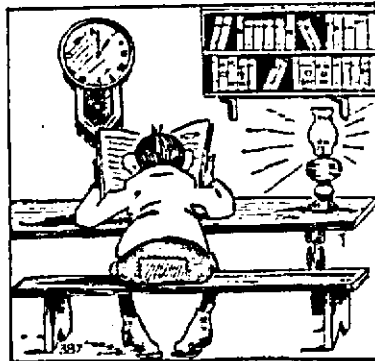

Another good idea may be mentioned in this connection. By cutting up new matting so that one pattern appears upon each small square and by knotting the warp as above indicated very excellent mats are made to protect the dining table from hot dishes.

Net Bedspreads.

Heavy, coarse meshed net is much used for bedspreads. The spread is usually made with a ruffle, or valance, as it might be called, and just clears the floor, and the prettiest ones have an edge of Russian lace several inches wide. These spreads are used over underspreads of colored silk, satin or cambric, as purse and fancy dictate, and are very handsome used on the brass and iron beds.

Keeping Bread.

To avoid frequent bakings where homemade bread is desired sprinkle a liberal allowance of flour into a sack and pack into it the loaves to be kept with their top crusts in contact. Tie up the sack and hang it in an airy place.

RAILROADS ASK TIME TO EQUIP THEIR CARS

Claim They Are Unable to Install Safety Appliances Within Period Allowed by Law.

Washington, Aug. 6.—The interstate commerce commission gave a hearing on the applications of various railroads for an extension of time within which the equipment of their rolling stock with safety appliances must be completed. The law fixes Sept. 1 next J. T. Chamberlain of Boston, master car builder of the Boston & Maine, testified that his company has 500 cars still unequipped and would want seven months to equip them. The Atchafalaya, Topeka & Santa Fe railroad asked that the requirement of grab-irons on front or sides of road engines be dispensed with or else that the time for such equipment be extended.

The following roads were represented by counsel or by one or more officers: The Boston & Maine; Atchafalaya; Norfolk & Western; Long Island; Pennsylvania; Erie; New York, Susquehanna & Western; Chicago & Erie; New Jersey and New York; P. C. C. & St. L., and the lessee of the Hartwell Railway company.

The railway employees were represented by P. H. Morrissey, grand master of the Brotherhood of Railway Trainmen; John J. Hanahan, grand master of the Brotherhood of Locomotive Firemen; Frank T. Hawley, grand master of the Switchmen's Union of North America, Buffalo, N. Y., and A. B. Garrison, assistant grand chief of the Order of Railway Conductors, Cedar Rapids.

EMMETT'S SKELETON IN DOUBT

Bones in Irish Patriot's Grave Are of a Taller Man.

Dublin, Aug. 6.—At the instigation of Dr. Robert Emmet of New York an examination was made of the grave supposed to be that of the patriot Emmet. A skeleton was found, said to be that of man 6 feet tall, whereas Emmet was only 5 feet 7 inches. A curious circumstance in connection with the examination was that the skull instead of being found lying prone attached to the trunk, was found lying in an upright position, which as Emmet was beheaded may strengthen the theory that the remains were his. But the matter is still regarded as doubtful.
